

COVID-19 Resource Center

Amid the global challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic, Wiley is a pillar of stability in the nation's capital, convening the robust knowledge and capabilities of our diverse practices to support our clients worldwide. As this crisis continues to affect all sectors of the economy, our core strengths as a Washington institution remain the same. Drawing on our legal, regulatory, and policy capabilities, combined with our interdisciplinary depth and unparalleled mastery of the DC landscape, we are helping companies and organizations of all sizes respond to business risks stemming from this global public health crisis.

Read more

Wiley's COVID-19 Task Force is advising clients on a multitude of issues across numerous practice areas – including employment and labor; environment and product regulation; government contracts; health care; insurance; international trade; litigation, national security, privacy, cyber, and data governance; telecommunications, media, and technology; and white collar defense and government investigations. Our close relationships with decision-makers on Capitol Hill and in federal agencies, as they oversee the government's ongoing response to COVID-19, enable us to provide real-time advice and valuable insights to clients, with impact around the globe.

Through our partnership with Signal Group, which offers strategic communications, digital, and government relations strategies, Wiley is uniquely positioned to help our clients navigate these uncharted waters and the uncertainty that abounds.

Capabilities

- COVID-19 Task Force
- For Employers
- For Government Contractors
- For Small & Medium Businesses
- Privacy & Data Protection
- Vaccine Mandates

Featured Content