Bethany, special counsel to Wiley, is a regulatory compliance, transactional, and complex litigation attorney. She provides strategic advice to pharmaceutical manufacturers and health care companies, including health plans and providers, on issues of health care administration, privacy, cybersecurity, government contracting, patent infringement, and civil enforcement proceedings. In particular, she counsels clients on risk mitigation and prevention, and enjoys developing creative compliance solutions that fit within the unique contours of each business. A key component of her practice also involves representing clients during the drafting, negotiation, and administration of health services and pharmacy benefit management contracts. She offers clients a holistic approach to their legal needs, with the ability to transition seamlessly between litigation and contractual drafting.

Bethany has a Health Care LL.M. with a Certificate in Compliance Studies. She is also a Certified Information Privacy Professional through the International Association of Privacy Professionals, and is Certified in Healthcare Compliance and Healthcare Privacy Compliance through the Compliance Certification Board. Previously, she taught health care compliance, business of health care, legislative and administrative law, and torts at Wake Forest University School of Law. Bethany is particularly interested in the intersection of health care and technology, and routinely publishes on this topic.
