Bloomberg Law

September 3, 2019

Duane C. Pozza, partner in Wiley Rein's Privacy, Cyber & Data Governance and FTC Regulation practices, was quoted by Bloomberg Law in a September 3 article about the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) toughening its approach to data security enforcement by issuing more specific security requirements for companies as part of settlement agreements.

The Commissioners are "using all of their available tools to be as specific as they think they can be around data security requirements," said Mr. Pozza, who previously served as Assistant Director in the Division of Financial Practices at the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection.
